I've been trying hard to get studied up in preparation for taking my ColdFusion Certification test. While I'm not too worried about passing, I'm dead set on getting an Advanced Certification, and that's not quite as easy. One of my coworkers already got his advanced with a score of 95%... tough act to follow!

I'm also wrestling with the idea of going straight to the CF8 test. I've got a good understanding of the updates and changes, and the test is going to be useful for much longer, but my company is only requiring CF7. Paired with the fact that no good study materials have been made for 8 yet, and I'm worried that I could fail if I go that extra mile.

Tough call.
